Aim’n High (Young Mums Education and Support) Program is a collaboration between Mission Australia and Hallam Senior College that aims to assist young mothers to return to mainstream education.

The Aim’n High program enables young mothers to re-engage and participate in mainstream education. It is specifically targeted towards those who wish to pursue and complete their education. Subjects offered include VCE English and Health and Human Development. Homework is targeted to be completed within school hours.

This individualised program offers unique services that will support young mothers to achieve significant education outcomes. This includes accessing government funding for child care.

Aim’n High offers case management and ongoing education support in a safe and comfortable environment.

The Aim’n High program is a collaboration between Mission Australia and Hallam Senior College that aims to assist young mothers to return to mainstream education.

Features Include
- Provision of VCE classes off campus at Mission Australia Early Learning Service (MAELS) while their children are placed in childcare at MAELS, preferably at the same location.
- Assistance and support with homework.
- High quality child care facilities.
- Government subsidised child care fees.
- Case management support.
- Afternoon program providing study and social support.

Key Contacts
Bernadette Bowling (Assistant Principal), Anne Martin (Principal)
South East Youth Connections (Intake number): 1800 335 106
Rebecca Callanan (Mission Australia): 0418 182 480